Giant Two-Ton Shark Captured Off Santa Cruz

A crew of eight fishermen under Capt. Pete San Felipe from San Francisco caught this mammoth "sea tiger" while trolling for sardines! The 4700-pound monster measured 26 1/2 feet long, one of the largest brought into San Francisco in years. The shark appears above, spreading its length on a truck, while below Miss Louise Scarper examines the manhunter's mouth, in which an average-sized shark has been placed by way of comparison.

"The Shanghai Express" A Story Of Oriental Love and Danger

"The Shanghai Express," which comes to the Torrance Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is one of those glamorous stories of the Orient which intrigue the mind and thrill the beholder with its hint of mystery, love and danger. Marlene Dietrich, the blond and glamorous star of romantic roles, with the deep blue, mysterious eyes, is now "Shanghai Lily," the white flower of the China coast. She is a girl of radiant beauty, tantalizing, and seductive. It had taken many men to give her the name of Shanghai Lily. Her reputation was a byword. Many men had loved her, yet only one, Clive Brook, had been loved in return. Years before they met and parted. They meet again aboard the "Shanghai Express," part of a strange cargo of happiness and sorrow, intrigue and danger. The story of "Shanghai Express" combines those basic elements of entertainment—romance—humor—suspense—and swift action. It begins with the "Shanghai Express" leaving Peking with a heterogeneous collection of characters aboard, ready for a desperate attempt to run thru rebel gun fire. It ends with their arrival in Shanghai after experiencing adventures both harrowing and humorous, romantic and pathetic. The cast of "Shanghai Express" is of extraordinary excellence. Clive Brook has a long list of successes. Anna May Wong made a pronounced hit in "Daughter of the Dragon." The reputation of Warner Oland in Oriental characterizations is world-wide through his remarkable work in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu" and similar roles. Eugene Pallette is a pronounced fan favorite because of his work in many pictures. All the other members of the cast have meritorious records.

New U. S. Ski Champion In Action

City Liable For Humpy Sidewalks

If roots from trees cause upheavals in the sidewalks and personal injuries result, the city is liable for damages, City Attorney Stanley advised H. W. Roberts, who inquired of the city council Tuesday evening concerning the condition of sidewalks. Roberts stated that a number of walks about the city were in a dangerous condition due to the growth of tree roots and suggested that the roots be cut and the walks made level.

Bees, Goats, Hens His Estate

MODESTO, Calif.—(U.P.)—Bees, hives, goats and chickens make up the estate of Erick Olson, rancher. His will on file here listed his property as: 115 colonies of bees, 15 goats, 25 chickens, 400 empty hives valued at $600.

WHOLE UNIVERSE IN 4 MINUTES

This $750,000 planetarium to be completed in Los Angeles this summer will give spectators an accurate picture of star and planet movements, compressing a year's movements in the space of four minutes. Funds were provided in the will of Col. Griffith J. Griffith.

By the United Press
 LOS ANGELES.—The heavens as they appeared 50,000 years ago, as they appear today, or as they will appear 50,000 years hence, will be seen by Southern Californians with completion this summer of a $750,000 planetarium to be erected here. The institution, the third of its kind in the United States, will be started some time in April, the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles, its sponsors, announced. Construction and maintenance of the planetarium was provided in the will of the late Col. Griffith J. Griffith, pioneer Los Angeles developer. The building will be located on the side of Mount Hollywood in a spacious park Griffith gave the city. The instrument with which visitors may view the heavens will weigh two tons when completed. It is composed of 119 synchronized projectors. There are 50 lenses in the apparatus and each lens will project a portion of the heavens upon the ceiling of the building's dome. By this means the entire celestial system can be regulated. Six hundred spectators can watch the "planets" and "stars" arise in the east and set in the west. A year's movement can be compressed into four minutes so that the planets race across the skies. The elaborate and ingenious instrument is so synchronized that the stars can be arranged as they were when dinosaurs roamed the earth and how they will appear 50,000 years from now. The two other planetaria now in operation are located in Philadelphia and Chicago, where more than 3000 spectators are said to view the heavens daily. In Europe there are approximately 15 like institutions, 15 in Germany and one each in Vienna, Moscow and Rome. Plans for the Los Angeles planetarium were made under the direction of scientists from the California Institute of Technology, including Dr. Robert Millikan, world renowned physicist, and Dr. Walter Adams, head of the Carnegie Institute Observatory at Mt. Wilson, Calif.
